

July 2011

Hi, Lyn

Just a quick note to thank you for a really terrific day yesterday, although by the time I'd sloshed through the driving rain and negotiated my way home across rush-hour London, my brain was complete mush. But then I cogitated overnight and had a quick look in my "goody-bag" at the information you'd given me, and all I can see are boundless horizons. We covered such a lot of ground and I'm looking forward to have a couple of quiet hours to properly go through it all – although you'll be pleased to hear that I have finally worked out what I was doing with notched corners! I just couldn't quite visualise it, but it came to me in a blinding flash in the shower this morning. And I can't wait to show off the tiles and the piece of the Monument to everyone – I'm absolutely delighted with them. Thank you very much indeed, Lyn.

I shall brace myself and get in touch with Tony at Lion in the next few days about getting a Keencut. It will make such a tremendous difference – well, there's just no comparison really. And I'd forgotten about glass-cutting! I can do that now, too!

So, with all the help you've given me I can progress a little further – then I'd love to come and see you again and learn more. With very best wishes and thanks,

KATE
